Faculty Positions in Fundamental Biomedical Science

Weill Cornell Medical College invites applications for full-time tenured/tenure-track faculty positions for individuals with research interests in fundamental aspects of biological science. The search is targeted towards junior faculty, but outstanding candidates at other ranks will be considered. The research focus of suitable candidates is broadly defined and includes quantitative approaches to structural, pharmacological, biochemical, biophysical, imaging and integrative aspects of fundamental problems in biomedical science. A generous startup package is available.

Interested applicants should forward a single PDF file containing: 1) a covering letter of application; 2) a Curriculum Vitae; 3) an overview of current and future research interests; and 4) the names and contact information of at least three referees to: sciencefacultysearch@med.cornell.edu.

Evaluation of applications by an interdepartmental search committee will commence on October 15, 2016, and applications will be considered until the position is filled.
